Pathetic Farewell.

Jacques Jasmin, a barber and poet of France, began life in extreme poverty. That the pathetic events of such a childhood must have sunk into his soul may be guessed from one incident which, in after years, he set down in his "Recollections." His grandfather, when too old and infirm to solicit alms, quietly made arrangements to be carried to an almshouse in order that he might no longer burden the family. Jasmin says:

I was then ten years old. I was playing in the square with my companions, girded with a wooden sword, and I was king, but suddenly a dreadful spectacle disturbed my royalty. I saw an old man in an armchair borne along by several persons. The bearers approached, and I recognized my own grandfather. In my grief I saw only him.

I ran up to him in tears, threw myself on his neck and kissed him. He returned my embrace and wept.

"Oh, grandfather," said I, "where are you going? Why are you leaving our home?"

"My child," said he, "I am going to the almshouse, where all the Jasmins die."

He again embraced me, closed his eyes and was carried away. We followed him for some time under the trees, and then I abandoned my play and returned home, full of sorrow.

In five days the dear old man quietly breathed his last. His wallet was hung up on its usual nail in the room, but it was never used again. One of the breadwinners had departed, and the family was poorer than ever. On that Monday I knew and felt for the first time that we were very poor. Fortune came to me years after, but for some of those I loved she came too late.

Vegetable Hedgehogs.

Cactuses are the hedgehogs of the vegetable world; their motto is "Nemo me impune lacessit." Many a time in the West Indies I have pushed my hand for a second into a bit of tangled bush, as the negroes call it, to seize some rare flower or some beautiful insect and been punished for twenty-four hours afterward by the stings of the almost invisible and glasslike little cactus needles. The reason for this bellicose disposition on the part of the cactuses is a tolerably easy one to guess. Fodder is rare in the desert. The starving herbivores that find themselves from time to time belated on the confines of such thirsty regions would seize with avidity upon any succulent plant which offered them food and drink at once in their last extremity.

In the ceaseless war between herbivore and plant, which is waged every day and all day long the whole world over with far greater persistence than the war between carnivore and prey, only those species of plant can survive in such exposed situations which happen to develop spines, thorns or prickles as a means of defense against the mouths of hungry and desperate assailants.—Grant Allen in Macmillan's Magazine.

The Father of Modern Jurisprudence.

Louis IX was practically the founder of modern jurisprudence. About the year 1241 he noticed the abuses which were caused in France by men taking into their own hands the work of redressing their own wrongs, and published a proclamation establishing the quarantine du roi. This forbade private redress for wrongs for the space of forty days after the injury was committed. During that time the injured person must seek redress and satisfaction in the king's court, and if his wrong were not righted at the end of forty days he might then take its rectification into his own hands.

This proclamation made justice speedy and tolerably sure, although of course its administration was in a rough and ready way, and unless the records are at fault some law of this kind prevailed in Louisiana at the time when Missouri was a part of the French king's possessions.—Philadelphia Ledger.

How New York Appears to a Foreigner.

Of the ugliness, confusedness and shabbiness of New York nothing new can be said; but full justice is done to the Central park, which in another generation will be the most beautiful public resort in the world. It would, however, be altogether unfair to judge of America by New York; no other town in the Union can vie with it in dirt, inconvenience and meanness of appearance.—London Spectator.

Writing Letters Without Sight.

A woman whose eyesight has passed almost beyond the failing point finds such relief in using the ridged tablets upon which paper is laid that she says all nearly blind persons should do likewise. "They have made letter writing a pleasure," she says, "where before it was a pain. I put a pin in where I leave off, and I can begin right again after any interruption.—New York Times.

When You Are in Doubt About a Diamond.

Put your finger behind the stone and look at it through the diamond as through a magnifying glass. If the stone is genuine you will be unable to distinguish the grain of the skin, but with a false stone this will be plainly visible. Furthermore, looking through a real diamond the setting is never visible, whereas it is with a false stone.—New York Herald.

The Last Office.

Poet—They tell me I've got to die.

Editor (weeping)—Yes, John.

Poet—We can't take anything with us into the next world, can we?

Editor—No, John.

Poet (sadly)—Then I'll have to leave all that unpublished MS!

Editor—Don't worry about that, John, I'll see that it's buried with you.—Kate Field's Washington.

A Bear That Would Not Be Tamed.

The officers of the Bear tried to make a pet of an arctic cub bear which they had caught. It would brook no familiarity of any kind, but would walk up and down the deck, looking straight ahead and growling and gnawing at everything.—New York News.

Political Notes.

Halsey M. Barrett will probably be appointed Township Counsel.

Several members of the Fire Department are said to aspire in a quiet way to the position of Chief Engineer.

Politicians are remarking the fact that the four members of the Town Committee elected on Tuesday constitute a majority of that body, and can control the make-up of all sub-committees and appointive offices.

William B. Corby has made a very efficient Health Board officer in the past and will, very likely, be retained. The office is one of the most important in the town, requiring courage and tact in its administration. Mr. Corby possesses both those qualities in a high degree.

Specimen Cases

S. H. Clifford, New Castle, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his Liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shephard, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large Fever Sores on his leg; doctors said he was incurable. One bottle of Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold at GEO. M. WOOD'S Drugstore.—Adv't.

W. V. S. & Co.

The variegated needlework in gold, silver, silk and other threads on the handsome stuffs we have provided makes the most elaborate display of Embroideries we have ever brought together. Everything you are used to seeing on a trimming and embroidery counter, and many entirely new things, are here.

We have Embroidered demi-flouncings on cambric, nainsook and Swiss, ten to fourteen inches wide, in white, cream, pink, cardinal and blue. You will find the above in Irish Point work as well as the regular styles. There are some handsomely embroidered edgings and insertions in Geto on cambric, jaconet and nainsook.

For young misses there are some 27-inch flouncings, hemstitched and scalloped, and for ladies the same thing in 45-inch. For infants' long dresses we can show you especially neat and fine work in 40-inch to 45-inch flouncings. We also have on hand a large stock of solid worked edgings, festoon edgings and embroidered allovers.

The prices for these embroideries are below those of former seasons, because we have bought largely and luckily. Come look.
